CHAPTER XXI.

Concluded.

Mr. George, who has been looking first at one of them and then at the other, as if he were decorated, takes his venerable acquaintance by the throat on receiving this request, and dragging him upright in his chair as easily as if he were a doll, appears in two minds whether or not to shake all future power of cushioning out of him, and shaking him into his grave. Resisting the temptation, he but shaking him violently enough to make his head roll like a harlequin's, he puts him smartly down in his chair again, and adjusts his skull cap with such a rub, that the old man winks with both eyes for a minute afterward.

"O Lord!" says Mr. Smallweed. "That'll do. Thank you, my dear friend, that'll do. O dear me! I'm out of breath. O Lord!" And Mr. Smallweed says it, not without evident appreciation of his dear friend, who still stands over him, looming larger than ever.

The alarming presence, however, gradually subsides into its chair, and falls to smoking in large puffs; consoling itself with the philosophical reflection, "The nature of your friend in the city begins with a D, comrade, and you're about right respecting the toad."

"Did you speak, Mr. George?" inquired the old man.

"I take it," he says, making just as much and as little change in his position as will enable him to reach the glass to his lips, with a round, full action, "that I am the only man alive (or dead either), that gets the value of a pipe out of you yet."

"Well," returns the old man, "it's true that I don't see company, Mr. George, and that I don't treat. I can't afford to do it. But as you in your pleasant way, made your pipe a condition—"

"Why, it's not for value of it; that's no great thing. It was a fancy to get it out of you. To have something in for my money."

"Ha! You're prudent, prudent, sir!" cries Grandfather Smallweed, rubbing his legs.

"Very. I always was." Puff. "It's a sure sign of my prudence, that I ever found the way here." Puff. "Also, that I am what I am." Puff "I am well known to be prudent," says Mr. George, composedly smoking. "I rose in life, that way."

"Don't be down hearted, sir. You may rise yet."

Mr. George laughs and drinks.

"Hasn't you no relations now," asks Grandfather Smallweed, with a twinkle in his eyes, "who would pay off this little principal, or who would lend you a good name or two that could persuade my friend in the city to make you a further advance upon? Two good names would be sufficient for my friend in the city. Have you no such relations Mr. George?"

Mr. George, still composedly smoking, replies, "If I had, I shouldn't trouble them. I have been trouble enough to my belongings in my day. It may be a very good sort of penitence in a vagabond, who has wasted the best time of his life, to go back then to decent people that he never was a credit, and live upon them: but it's not my sort. The best kind of amends then, for having gone astray, is to keep away, in my opinion."

"Sad, natural affection, Mr. George," hints Grandfather Smallweed.

"For two good names, hey?" says Mr. George, shaking his head, and still composedly smoking. "No. That's not my sort, either."

Grandfather Smallweed has been gradually sliding down in his chair since his last adjustment, and is now a bundle of clothes, with a voice in it calling for Judy. That Hourl appearing shakes him up in the usual manner, and is charged by the old gentleman to reanimate him. For he seems chary of putting his visitor to the trouble of his late attentions.

"Ha!" he observes, when he is in trim again. "If you could have traced out the Captain, Mr. George, it would have been the making of you. If, when you first came here, in consequence of our advertisements in the newspapers—when I say "our," I'm alluding to the advertisements of my friend in the city, and one or two others who entrust their capital in the same way, and are so friendly toward me as sometimes to give me a lift with my little pittances—if, at that time, you could have helped us, Mr. George, it would have been the making you."

"I was willing enough to be 'made,' as you call it," says Mr George, smoking not quite so placidly as before, for since the entrance of Judy has has been in some measure disturbed by a fascination, not of the admiring kind, which obliges him to look at her as she stands by her grandfather's chair; "but, on the whole, I am glad I wasn't now."

"Why, Mr. George!—In the name of—of Brimstone, why?" says Grandfather Smallweed, with a plain appearance of exasperation. (Brimstone apparently suggested by his eye lighting on Mrs. Smallweed in her slumber.)

"For two reasons, comrade."

"And what two reasons, Mr. George? In the name of the—"

"Of our friend in the city," suggests Mr. George composedly drinking.

"Ay, if you like. What two reasons?"

"In the first place," returns Mr. George; but still looking at Judy, as if she being so old and so like her grandfather, it is indifferent which of the two he addresses: "you gentlemen took me in. You advertised that Mr. Hawdon (Captain Hawdon, if you hold to the saying. Once a captain always a captain) was to hear of something to his advantage."

"Well?" returns the old man shrilly and sharply.

"Well?" says Mr. George, smoking on. "It wouldn't have been much to his advantage to have been clapped into prison by the whole bill and judgment trade of London."

"How do you know that? Some of his rich relations might have paid his debts, or compounded for 'em. Besides, he had taken us in. He owed us immense sums all round. I would soon ave have strangled him than had no return. If I sit here thinking of him," snarls the old man, holding up his impotent ten fingers," "I want to strangle him now." And in a sudden access of fury he throws the cushion at the unoffending Mrs. Smallweed, but it passes harmlessly on one side of her chair.

"I don't need to be told," returns the trooper, taking his pipe from his lips for a moment, and carrying his eyes back from following the progress of the cushion to the pipe-bowl, which is burning low, "that he carried on heavily and went to ruin. I have been at his right hand many a day, when he was charging upon ruin full-gallop. I was with him, when he was sick and well, rich and poor. I laid this hand upon him, after he had run through every thing and broken down everything beneath him—when he held a pistol to his head."

"I wish he had let it off!" says the benevolent old man, "and blown his head into as many pieces as he owed pounds!"

"That would have been a smash indeed," returns the trooper, coolly; "any way, he had been young, hopeful, and handsome in the days gone by; and I am glad I never found him when he was neither, to lead to a result so much to his advantage. That's reason number one."

"I hope number two's as good?" says the old man.

"Why, no. It's more of a selfish reason. If I had found him, I must have gone to the other world to look. He was there."

"How do you know he was there?"

"He wasn't here."

"How do you know he wasn't here?"

"Don't. Save your temper as well as your money," says Mr. George, calmly knocking the ashes out of his pipe. "He was drowned long before. I am convinced of it. He went over a ship's side. Whether intentionally or accidentally, I know not. Perhaps your friend in the city does. Do you know what that tune is, Mr. Smallweed?" he adds, after breaking off to whistle one, accompanied on the table with the empty pipe.

"Tune!" replies the old man. "No. We never have tunes here."

"That's the Dead March in Saul. They bury soldiers in it, so it's the natural end of the subject. Now, if your pretty granddaughter—excuse me, miss—will condescend to take care of this pipe for two months, we shall save the cost of one, next time. Good evening, Mr. Smallweed!"

"My dear friend!" The old man gives him both his hands.

"So you think your friend in the city will be hard upon me, if I fail in payment?" says the trooper, looking down upon him like a giant.

"My dear friend, I am afraid he will," returns the old man looking up at him like a pigmy.

Mr. George laughs; and with a glance at Mr. Smallweed, and a parting salutation to the scornful Judy, strides out of the parlor, clashing imaginary sabres and other metallic appurtenances as he goes.

"You're a damned rogue," says the old gentleman, making a hideous grimace at the door as he shuts it. "But I'll lime you, you dog. I'll lime you.

After this amiable remark, his spirit soars into those enchanting regions of reflection which its education and pursuits have opened to it; and again he and Mrs. Smallweed wile away the rosy hours, two unrelieved criminals forgotten as aforesaid by the Black Seargeant.

While the twain are faithful to their post, Mr. George strides through the streets with a massive kind of swagger and a grave enough face. It is eight o'clock now, and the day is drawing in. He stops hard by Waterloo Bridge, and reads a playbill: decides to go to Astley's Theatre. Being there, is much delighted with the horses and the feats of strength: looks at the weapons with a critical eye; disapproves of the combats, as giving evidences of unskillful swordmanship; but is touched home by the sentiments. In the last scene, when the Emperor of Tartary gets up into a cart and consolecends to bless the united lovers, by hovering over them with the Union-Jack, his eyelashes are moistened with emotion.

The theatre over, Mr. George comes across the street again, and makes his way to that curious region lying about the Hay-market and Leicester Square, which is a centre of attraction to indifferent foreign hotels and indifferent foreigners, market-courts, fighting-men, swordsmen, footguards, old chins, gaming-men, swordsmen, footguards, old chins, gaming-houses, exhibitions, and a large medley of shabbiness and shrinking out of sight. Penetrating to the heart of this region, he arrives by a court and a long white-washed passage, at a great brick building, composed of bare walls, floor, roof-rafters, and sky-lights; on the front of which, if it can be said to have any front, is painted George's Shooting Gallery, &c.

Into George's Shooting Gallery, &c., he goes; and in it there are gas-lights (partly turned off now,) and two whitened targets for rifle-shooting, and archery accommodation, and fencing appliances, and all necessaries for the British art of boxing. None of these sports or exercises are being pursued in George's Shooting Gallery to-night: which is so devoid of company, that a little grotesque man, with a large head, has it all to himself, and lies asleep upon the floor.

The little man is dressed something like a gunsmith in a green baize apron and cap; and his face and hands are dirty with gunpowder, and begrimed with the loading of guns. As he lies in the light, before a glaring white target, the black upon him shines again. Not for off, is the strong, rough, primitive table, with a vice upon it, at which he has been working. He is a little man with a face all crushed together, who appears, from a certain blue and speckled appearance that one of his cheeks presents, to have blown up, in the way of business, at some odd time or times.

"Phil!" says the trooper, in a quiet voice.

"All right!" cries Phil, scrambling up.

"Any thing been doing?"

"Flat as ever so much swipes," says Phil.—"Five dozen rifle and a dozen pistol. As to him!" Phil gives a howl at the recollection.

"Shut up shop, Phil!"

As Phil moves about to execute this order, it appears that he is lame, though able to move very quickly. On the opposite side of his face he has no eyebrows, and on the other side he has a bushy blank one, which want of uniformity gives him a very singular and rather sinister appearance. Everything seems to have happened to his hands that could take place, consistently with the retention of all the fingers; for they were notched, and seamed, and crumpled all over. He appears to be very strong, and lifts heavy benches about as if he had no idea what weight was. He has a curious way of hopping round the gallery with his shoulder against the wall, and ticking off at objects he wants to lay hold of, instead of going straight to them, which has left a smear all round the four walls, conventionally called "Phil's mark."

This custodian of George's Gallery in George's absence concludes his proceedings, when he has locked the great doors, and turned out all the lights but one, which he leaves to glimmer, by dragging out from a wooden order-box in a corner two mattresses and bedding. These being drawn to opposite ends of the gallery the trooper makes his own bed, and Phil makes his.

"Phil!" says the master, walking toward him without his coat and waistcoat, and looking more soldierly than ever in his braces, "You were found in a doorway, weren't you?"

"Gutter," says Phil. "Watchman tumbled over me."

"Then, vagabondizing came natural to you from the beginning."

"As natr'al as possible," says Phil.

"Good-night!"

"Good-night, gov'ner."

Phil can not even go straight to bed, but finds it necessary to shoulder round two sides of the gallery, and then tack off at his mattress.

"Phil!" says the master, looking round over his shoulder, after taking a turn or two in the rifle distance, and looking up at the moon, now shining through the skylights, strides to his own mattress by a shorter route, and goes to bed too.

RAIL ROAD CELEBRATION AT WHITEWATER.

The completion of the Milwaukee and Mississippi Rail Road to Whitewater, Walworth County, a distance of 51 miles from this city, was celebrated with appropriate festivities on Thursday last. The enterprising and hospitable citizens of Whitewater were the entertainers on this occasion, and their numerous guests from Milwaukee, Waukesha and other adjacent counties, could not have asked for kinder or better hosts. At 8 o'clock in the morning the Milwaukee Delegation—some 300 in number, including the Mayor and Common Council, the President and Directors of the Rail Road Company, the gentlemen of the press, and many of our leading business men, with a fair proportion of the gentler sex, left our city by Rail Road for Whitewater. The delegation was accompanied by an excellent Band of Music and a brass six-pounder; and at every stopping-place along the route, the melodious strains of the one and the thunder-tones of the other, woke up the echoes of prairie, opening and forest, and called round the train crowds of our country friends.

It was nearly noon when we reached Whitewater and found assembled there two or three thousand of the intelligent, self-dependent, law-and-order-loving Farmers of Walworth, with their wives and children, all rejoicing in the completion of the Rail Road to that point as a consummation of special interest and importance to them. The guests were received by Marshal CHENEY and welcomed to Whitewater, in a neat address, by Senator WAKELY. Mr. JOHN H. TWEEDY, in behalf of the Milwaukeeans, responded to Mr. WAKELY, glanced at the past history of the Rail-road enterprise, and spoke in cheering and eloquent terms of the bright prospect ahead. Some spirit-stirring airs from the Milwaukee and Whitewater Bands, and a salute of artillery, completed the ceremonies of reception. To give the country stockholders an idea of the road, the train then returned to Waukesha, giving a free ride to all who chose to go. About a thousand availed themselves of this offer; many of whom had never seen, or travelled upon, a Rail Road before. Meantime, in the interval before dinner, the Milwaukee Cricket Club, who were among the invited guests, pitched their wickets in a field a little distance from the depot, and had a short but pleasant game.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the company were summoned to dinner, and, preceded by the band, marched in regular order to the R. R. Depot, where tables had been spread for 750 persons. Ample as were the accomodations, there were guests enough to occupy all the seats; but had they been thrice as numerous, the bountiful provision made by our Whitewater friends, would have sufficed for them all. After an invocation to the Throne of Grace, the company proceeded to discuss the things spread out, in great abundance, before them, and soon made fearful inroads upon the bill of fare. But the larder held out famously, and after a half-hour's sharp contest, it was agreed on all hands that there was no such thing as exhausting it. Hereupon, appetite being satisfied, another sort of entertainment followed in the way of clever speeches and apt sentiments. The ball was opened by the Hon. JOHN CATLIN, President of the R. R. Company, and presiding officer at the feast; who made a fitting allusion to the circumstances which had brought them together, and offered a sentiment expressive of his hope that the enterprize, thus far so successfully prosecuted, would be pushed ahead, speedily and energetically, till the road reached the Mississippi. Col. GEO. H. WALKER followed in a highly animated and eloquent speech, in which he recapitulated some of the formidable and almost insuperable difficulties which the company had met and triumphantly overcome, and took occasion to congratulate every friend and stockholder of the road that the night was passed, the Rubicon safely crossed, and ultimate success assured beyond a peradventure. The Colonel's speech was warmly received and interrupted by repeated cheerings. Other brief, pertinent and effective addresses followed, from Messrs. WAKELY and CHENEY of Whitewater; Messrs. E. D. HOLTON, D. WELLS, KILBOURN, BOOTH and others of Milwaukee; Mr. A. W. RANDALL, of Waukesha, and Mr. E. H. BRODHEAD, the accomplished and energetic Chief Engineer of the R. R. company. This last gentleman was called out by a toast in his honor, by the President of the company, and responded to by the company with three enthusiastic cheers.

The festivities within the Depot were prolonged till nearly 5 o'clock, the hour fixed for the train to start homeward. Some of the party remained to join in the dance which came off in upper story of the Depot in the evening, while the rest were brought back in good season, without the least mishap and in great glee, to their homes in Milwaukee. Much praise is due to the people of Whitewater for the very thorough and excellent style in which the whole affair was got up and conducted. We certainly do not remember to have ever seen a similar entertainment better arranged and managed, or more completely successful. Everybody appeared to be satisfied and joyous, and the whole character and conduct of the assemblage was such as to reflect credit upon the people of Whitewater and Walworth County, and to hold out the happiest auguries for the future of Wisconsin. In a little more than two months we hope to have a like interchange of civilities with our fellow-citizens of Janesville and the farmers of old Rock: for before December's snows have fallen, the Iron Horse will be slaking his thirst in the waters of the beautiful river which makes glad that fertile region of our peerless State.

A "NATIVE AMERICAN" ORACLE.—We learn from the Washington County Blade that a mass meeting of the "PIERCE & KING democracy" was held at Newark, in that county, on the 24th ult., which was addressed by Dr. HUEBSCHMANN and Mr. A. D. SMITH. The remarks of the latter are thus condensed by the Blade:—

Mr. Smith spoke of the federal party of the times of John Adams, and the alien and sedition laws, and the hostility of the party to foreigners, Scott's Native Americanism, &c.

This false and pitiful slang constitutes the whole stock in trade of the Pierce & King party. It comes with especially good grace from Mr. A. D. SMITH, who some years since, bolted a "regular democratic" nomination for Sheriff, on the ground that "his conscience would'n't permit him to vote for a Catholic!"

THE STATE FAIR.—The preparations for this Farmers' Festival are in full progress, and we hope that nothing will be left undone, on the part of the citizens of Milwaukee, to make it eminently successful. It is quite possible that there will be many more visitors here from abroad than our public houses can accomodate, in which case private hospitality must supply the deficiency. The expenses of fitting up the grounds are to be defrayed by our own citizens and each man should contribute his proportion of this necessary fund. Especially should those who have abundant means and who own large interests in our city, give liberally on this occasion, and we hope that the Committee, who have this matter in charge, will meet with no churlish refusals in any quarter.

THE DIFFERENCE.—The resolution of inquiry into the amount of money paid by Government to Gen. SCOTT has not turned out particularly advantageous to the Pierce party. It has shown that for forty-four years of hard service, during which he has won many brilliant victories for his country, and served it nobly in a civil capacity, Gen. Scott has received something over $200,000. But it also shows that for one year's services, such as they were, Gen. Pierce received more than $90,000! Such a rate of pay for Gen. Scott would have given him near $900,000.

SENATOR HALE.—The Free Democrat announces that Mr. HALE, the Free Soil candidate for the Presidency, will be in this State week after next and spend three days here. Mr. HALE is a capital speaker and will be listened to with interest and pleasure even by those who do not share his practical opinions.

SECOND DISTRICT.—DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.—At the Congressional Convention held on the 29th at Mineral Pt, Ben. C. EASTMAN, the present member, was re-nominated.

MUKWONAGO, Sept. 28.

Messrs. R. King & Co.:

The Judicial election on yesterday in this town resulted as follows:

Whiton,	69	Larabee,	63
Strong,	50	Smith,	79
Knowlton,	64	Crawford,	54

Yours, &c, T.

(Well done Mukwonago! This was the town where, according to a letter to the Racine Democrat, "politically all looked well," and where they were "going to give all the party candidates, including Judges, a clean party vote"—Ed. Sentinel.

COOL.—Of all the charmingly refreshing lectures upon international righteousness, commend us to a late one in the London Times, taking brother Jonathan to task for some supposed wicked design upon Peru in general, and the Lobos Islands in particular. The moral tone of the lecture is admirable, but the thing is, that it comes from John Bull! And John cites his own noble example too! His article runs thus:—"You see those Madeira Islands, finely situated, a capital place of resort for our invalids, badly governed by Portugal—what prevents us from taking possession of them? Why, says the Times:

"Two reasons, which our American friends will do well to consider. We will not violate the principles of eternal justice, tarnish the lustre of our arms, and disgrace our character for fairness and moderation, by wresting his property from our ally because he is unable to keep it. And if we wish to do this we dare not. We dread the retribution which follows on such acts, and have learnt that sooner or later, the force of public opinion will put down any power which claims to emancipate itself from the control of conscience and the practice of justice.

Oh John! John! The principle—the doctrine—is capital, is holy. But your practice, what has that been? Do you suppose the rest of the world has never heard of India? Or are the principles of "eternal justice" in abeyance there?

IMPORTANT ELECTIONS.—On the 12th of Oct. elections take place in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. In Pennsylvania and Ohio, members of Congress, as well as of the Legislature, are to be elected. In Indiana there are also to be chosen a Governor and Liet. Governor, and many other public officers.

SENATORIAL NOMINATION.—CYRUS A. HALL, of Johnstown, is the democratic candidate for State Senator in the north district of Rock County.

City Matters.

State Fair Committee.

We are requested to give notice that the Committe of Arrangements for the State Fair will hold a special meeting this (Saturday), at 8 o'clock, at the U. S., at the U. S., Hotel. Every member is urged to be punctual in his attendance and those who hold subscription lists are particularly requested to return them to-night: that the amount subscribed may be ascertained and properly applied.

SENATOR DOUGLAS AND HIS APOLOGISTS.—The News is in high dudgeon with our strictures upon Mr. Douglas' speech, and vainly attempts to smooth over, or explain away the worst portions of that demagogueical effort. It may as well save its time and breath. Not the most profuse or skilful whitewishing can cover the blotches which disfigured the entire address. No petrifogging, or special pleading can reconcile the West to the Tonnage Duties system with which that crude statesman proposes to build our Harbors and improve our Rivers. No manner of sophistry can make our People swallow the Red Republican sentiments of the little Destructive. Mr. DOUGLAS must carry his wares to other markets. They will find few admirers and no sale here. They must answer well enough for "Egypt," but are wholly misdelineated for the meridian of Wisconsin.

THE CRICKET-MATCH.—The great Match between the Milwaukee and Chicago Cricket Clubs comes off at Chicago, on Monday next, and excites great interest in both cities. Our Chicago friends are preparing for the contest in very thorough style and their arrangements, for spectators as well as players, are most complete. We understand that Capt. CORTON, agent of the Central R. R. Line of boats, has very liberally offered to take our Milwaukee Players to Chicago, free of cost, and all others who may wish to accompany them, at half-price. We hope that every member of the Club, who can spare the time, and as many others of our citizens as can do so conveniently, will accompany our Milwaukee Eleven to the field of amicable strife. They deserve a handsome escort. They leave here to-morrow morning and return Tuesday afternoon.

The Club meets on their ground this afternoon at half-past 2 o'clock. It is hoped that all will attend on the ground, as this is the last opportunity for practice previous to the Match, and in order to make the final arrangements for the trip.

THEATRE.—Mr. RICE opens his Theatre in this city for one week (during the State Fair) on Monday evening next, with an excellent company. Miss JULIA DEAN, confessedly the best Actress on the American Stage, is engaged and will appear every night. On Monday evening she will sustain the character of Julia in "the Hunchback," one of her very best characters.

THE MUSICAL SOCIETY.—The opening Concert of the Milwaukee Musical Society was largely attended, but not as successful as could have been wished. The defect is attributable to the insufficient rehearsals and will soon be remedied. The Society boasts among its Members abundant musical talent and the conductor, Mr. BALATKA, is an accomplished artist. We do not doubt that the next concert will find both Orchestra and Chorus in excellent drill, again, and capable of maintaining and adding to, their former high reputation.

A HANDSOME VESSEL.—We had the pleasure yesterday of looking through the new schooner Flying Cloud, 367 tons register. Capt. Pierce, belonging to Mr. E. F. Merrick, of Clayton, below Oswego. She is, by all odds, the most complete craft of the kind we have ever seen in the river.—Her size enable the builders to finish off a cabin and saloon at the stern, which are just the perfection of neatness and comfort, and every sort of the vessel is complete in its way and use. She loads with 20,000 bus. barley for Buffalo.

NORTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—We are requested to state that the afternoon services in the North Presbyterian Church, Rev. Mr. BUCHANAN pastor, will hereafter commence at 2½ o'clock, instead of 4 o'clock, as has been the case during summer. The new arrangement of time commences to-morrow.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.—We are indebted to Messrs. ARNOLD & WILSON, of No. 21 Wisconsin street, for the American re-publications of the last Edinburgh and North British Review, both sterling periodicals, and well-filled with original articles of great merit. Messrs. A. & W. are in receipt of a large number of new publications, and among them several excellent story-books, especially adapted to the young folks.

FURNACES.—The public will be interested in the advertisement of Chilson, Richardson & Co's. Furnaces, for heating churches, dwellings, &c.—Many fine houses are now being erected in our city, or are nearly completed, and an examination of Messrs. C., R. & Co's article may bring them to the knowledge of just the thing they need.

IRVING HOUSE, NEW YORK.—This admirable house, complete in every thing which goes to make up a perfectly arranged hotel, has recently passed into the hands of W. H. BURROUGHS, late of the Franklin House, Philadelphia, who is sustaining the reputation of the Irving in first rate style.

IMPORTED WINES &c.—If ours was not strictly a temperance city, and entirely ignorant of the varieties and qualities of the liquid comforts, there might be an object, on the part of Messrs. M. B. PETERS & Co, New York, in setting forth the variety of their wares, as they do in our advertising columns.

"THE CAMPBELLS ARE COMING!"—This famous band of Minstrels, known throughout the States as thorough adepts in their art, and always drawing crowded houses, are to be here week after next.

THE PANORAMA.—Don't forget it, if you have any taste for the beautiful in nature, admirably represented on canvass, by an artist of tried skill and long study.

CATTLE FAIR.—See the notice of a fair for the show and sale of stock to be held at Good Hope P. O. in this county on the 11th.

FEELING BAD ABOUT IT.—We regret to see that the result of the late Judicial Election has seriously affected the usually amiable temper of the Madison Democrat. That respectable organ of logic denounces, thus vents its feelings on the occasion:—

The combination has had all the effect intended by the whigs in forming it—it has divided the democracy and secured a whig victory.

Democrats who can be caught by so gross and transparent a trick as has been successfully practiced upon them in this election, and also in the preceding State election, may readily be seduced by tinsel pretensions and the glory of feathers; they have no strong adhesive sympathies with democratic principles, and if personal interest or caprice point them to the support of Gen. Scott, their democratic associations will be broken as readily as ropes of sand.

It is better to be right than be successful in wrong. Those who have betrayed us now because their personal interests were not subserved at the expense of the party, will be the most clamorous for their share in the next division of offices; let the party remember this and be not deceived. A man may cheat us once, and the fault be his; if he cheat us twice, the fault is ours.

Brave talk, but meaningless. Before three weeks are over these Pierce leaders will be but too happy to have the "aid and comfort" of the very men whom they now so bitterly denounce as deserters. The truth is, they can't spare them, and they know it.

NATIONAL WASHINGTON MONUMENT.—We learn from Washington that the monument at that city has reached the height of 117 feet, and is progressing upwards as rapidly as the funds will allow.

We again invite the attention of those who

DAILY SENTINEL.

Later from Cuba.

Pittsburgh, Sept.29.

The New Orleans Picayune of the 23d, has further advices from Havana. Correspondents for that paper say, so strict is the espionage observed that two English officers, attached to a British steamer, who during a walk pointed to the Fortification, were arrested and imprisoned on suspicion. British governed their immediate relief—Mr Morehead, acting American Consul cannot receive a single newspaper. The baggage of passengers was strictly overhauled for newspapers and sometimes private letters were opened and read, this occured with Captain Schneider, of New Orleans. The letter bag containing correspondence for delivery to American vessels, were also examined. Additional search police officers have been placed in every American vessel entering Havana, but not in vessels of other Nations.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.

Two men, named Jas. Hewitt and Alexander, Starratt, the former but recently from Sing Sing prison, were arrested by the police last evening at the house of Hewitt in Southwark. The police discovered in the house a press 15 counterfeit plates and enough money signed to fill a barrel. The notes were mostly on New York, Mass, Conn, R. Island, N. Jersey, Penn., and Va. banks. A large amount of counterfeit dollars were also found. The men were both committed to await examination.

Albany, Sept. 30.

Accident on the Hudson River.—The steamer Rip Van Winkle was run into on her passage up last evening, near Yonkers, breaking off one of her forward guards. The sloop which ran into her instantly sunk, after raking the steamer's guards, paddle-boxes, houses, &c.

Eight deaths from yellow fever for the 24 hours ending 9 o'clock, Tuesday evening. Forty-three for the week. Brevet Major Belland, captain second Regiment of Artillery, died of yellow fever on Tuesday morning, at Castle Pinkney, Charleston harbor, aged 35 years. He was distinguished in the Mexican war!

Express Journal.—The Boat that came in on Sunday brought some 40 passengers. Amongst them there was one Democrat found and 39 for Gen. Scott. Yours, &c.,—Chicago Journal.

New York, Sept. 27.

The Journal of Commerce contradicts the story that the Hon. Geo. P. Marsh, the American Minister at Constantinople, had left Athens, entirely satisfied that Dr. King had been properly tried by the Courts of Greece to whose decision he was bound to submit.

Gen. Scott in Kentucky.

Paris, Ky., Sept. 28.

General Scott reached this place last night, and was met by the Scott Guards of Georgetown, and a large delegation of citizens. He made no speech, merely thanking the citizens for a favorable reception at their hands, and expressing in warm terms his sense of the hospitality and kindness he had met in Kentucky. During his progress from Blue Lick, the citizens on the line of the route turned out freely, and the carriage was several times stopped to receive the greetings of the villagers on the road.

New York, Sept. 28.

The block of buildings in Atlantic street, between Columbia and Willow, were destroyed by fire about 3 o'clock this morning—two men and one woman perished in the flames. Loss will exceed $50,000.

Madame Sontag's Concert was crowded last evening to overflowing. The fair songstress was received with unbounded enthusiasm. She bids fair to have a highly successful tour throughout the United States.

New York 28th.

Morgan Morgans was last evening nominated by the Whigs of this city as a candidate for Mayor.

Barnum and Jenny Lind.—The Musical World and Times having been furnished with erroneous information as to the amount of money made by Mr. Barnum and Jenny Lind during her engagement with him, and having published the same, he makes the following correction in a note to that journal.

Mr. Editor:—Under the above caption I notice in The Musical World of the 4th inst., what purports to be a statement, from my "books," of the net proceeds of the Jenny Lind Concerts, while that lady was singing engagements with myself. That statement gives the following result:

Jenny Lind	$302,000.
P. T Barnum	308,000.
Total	$610,000.

I cannot imagine who pretended to furnish you with a statement of such manifest inaccuracy; but as the subject has excited some public interest, and constituted no little newspaper commentary, permit me to mention, positively, that the amounts named are far, very far indeed, below the plain reality. My portion of the profits certainly exceeded $300,000 by much more than one $50,000, and perhaps by several. I am not quite sufficiently at leisure the necessary "leisure" I shall publish a book, already in hand, furnishing the full details of the whole Jenny Lind engagement, including the receipts, disbursements, net profits, and many other curious and interesting facts connected with that subject. Truly yours, P. T. Barnum.

American Museum, Sept. 18, 1852.

Let Western Men Remember.—That Franklin Pierce stands upon the records as voting against all bills making appropriation, for the improvement for the navigation of our Rivers, and of the Harbors on the Northern Lakes; and that he is pledged, by all the acts of his life, to veto any bill which may be passed for this purpose, if he should be President.

Let be remembered, that William R. King, the Locofoco candidate for Vice President, and who may be President, in the event of the death of Gen. Pierce, is even a more inveterate hater of appropriations for River and Harbor Improvements than Gen. Pierce, and that under no circumstances can his support be given to them. And be it also remembered, that he acted, the late session of Congress, in Douglas' proposition to tax all the wheat, corn, flour, oats, hemp, pork, tobacco, and every product of the field that may be sent to market, to obtain funds with which to improve the navigation of our rivers; and that this tax may be levied and collected in every State in the Union save which those products pass.—Chicago Commercial Advertiser.

Important Accession.—The man who a short time since tried to get into the democratic ranks, but now goes for Scott, writes to the Sentinel that the religion could fly for shelter!—We congratulate Mr. S., on this accession to his strength, of which there is about as much prospect as that Scott will carry it.—Washington Co. Blade.

Well, that's not impossible. Stranger things have happened, friend Blade!

Smash.—Sunday morning last, the steamer Arctic in rounding into the south pier, her rudder chains getting foul in some way, she became unmanageable, and she ran stem into the end of the pier at the time, and breaking through it some ten feet or more, the stem of the boat reaching the warehouse, which it moved back about six inches. Fortunately, the boat sustained no injury.—Washington Co. Blade.

Rail Road Accident.—The Western train yesterday was thrown from the track near Belvidere. Some one had removed part of the track, and threw off both the passengers cars. Dan Harvey, the Conductor was injured, and quite a number of passengers, but not fatally. The track was torn up upon the bridge, evidently with the intention of throwing off the cars. The train did not arrive here until 11 o'clock, P. M.—Chicago Journal.

We regret to be unable to chronicle the arrival of the other distinguished gentlemen announced. Gen. Cass was unable to come further from feeble health, and the fatigue consequent upon the hard labor of the past season, and his long route homewards John Van Buren was kept at home on pressing business. He was neither at Detroit nor Chicago.—Mil. News.

It is understood John was prevented from coming on account of the failure of the "hops" crop, and there being no danger of "fun" being under it.—Chicago Journal.

For California.—Col. Solon Johnson, so long a resident in this village, and who has been so intimately connected with its interests, took his departure last week for California to dig his fortune. The Colonel goes with the best wishes of all who have known him so long and intimately.—Washington Co. Blade.

Death of Ex-Governor Chambers.—We regret to learn that this distinguished gentleman died on Tuesday, the 21st inst. His death took place at the residence of his son-in-law in Paris, Bourbon county Ky. Gov. Chambers was formerly a member of Congress, and more recently territorial Governor of Iowa.—Toledo Blade.

The Whig Candidate for President.

The Tribune pays a glowing but justly merited tribute to the excellence and purity of General Scott's schameter:

But it is not upon the score of intellectual ability, as manifested in Gen. Scott's successful military or civil career, that we wish particularly now to speak. His reputation is secure. His renown as great commander is established. Party detraction cannot lessen—party slanders cannot stain it. The public voice proclaims, and the public heart responds with a throbbing alacrity to the decree, that the fame of Winfield Scott, as a military man, is beyond all cavil or dispute. But what we would like to impress vividly upon the public mind is this, that the name of Winfield Scott is neither stained nor tarnished by any meanness or any wickedness! No blot rests upon his public or private character. His honor, his integrity, his manliness, his perfect uprightness, are unquestioned and unquestionable. In every public and private relation he is without reproach and above suspicion. He has shown himself to be not only above all the temptations of cupidity and avarice, but the perfect master of his appetites and passions. He has not only governed others. He has done habitually, through a long life, what is more difficult—he has governed himself. Aside from every other distinction, Gen. Scott is to-day

A MODEL CITIZEN.

No charge of vice, of extravagance, of discreditable indulgence of sordid aims or mercenary motives, can be laid to his charge. Simply as a man, General Scott stands before the world unimpeached and unimpeachable. He has passed through a thousand scenes of temptation in his public career, he has enjoined opportunities to amass the wealth of a potentate, yet he is to-day a man without spot or blemish, and though always living a frugal life, yet he is wholly without fortune. Of the millions that have passed through his hands, and of the millions he might have clutched had he stooped to do it, not a dollar has stuck to his palm.

It is this phase of Gen. Scott's character that exterts our unqualified admiration, and to which we feel a gride, as an American citizen, in drawing public attention. We present not only a distinguished man, and a man of large powers of intellect as our candidate for the Presidency, but we present a perfect sober and honest man—a distinction high and rare, and one of which the people of this country have evinced, on more than one memorable occasion, a striking appreciation. How mean and paltry, in view of this high distinction, seem the small criticism of small minds upon little personal peculiarities (always attendant upon every man of marked inviduality) of this eminent!

Great on great occasions, as he has always shown himself to be; wise in council and in action, as he has manifested himself in several of the most trying emergencies through which the country has ever been called to pass; the successful leader of battallions in the fiercest conflicts of war; the pacificator, whose skill has arrested its calamities in peace, the prudent and forbearing manager of intestine strifes; he adds to all the signal merit, the honorable distinction, the crowning glory of an unimpeachable citizen and an inflexibly honest man. Puerile, indeed are the small flings of partizan hostility, against the individual whose merits are so conspicuous, and whose life is so deserving of public regard and admiration!

NEW FALL AND WINTER GOODS.

E. M. SHOYER & CO.

HAVING ENLARGED their former premises, by the addition of the capacious store formerly occupied by Messrs. Ross, would call the attention of their customers and the public in city and country, to their extensive assortment of

READY MADE CLOTHING

Cloths, Cassimeres, Vestings, Satinetts, Tweeds, Flannels, and a general assortment of DRY GOODS, also a general and complete assortment of

GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS.

They are confident in view of their very superior and unusual facilities for the purchase of goods in the Eastern markets from cash auctions, importers and manufacturers, in all cases from first hands, one of the firm residing and superintending the business of their concern in Philadelphia, that they are not only able, and do buy their goods from 20 to 25 per cent cheaper than most houses in the trade who purchase from second hands, but they are able and are determined to sell that much lower. They deem it superfluous to attempt, as it is impossible to enumerate the articles forming their stock, while in reality it is unrivalled by any similar establishment west of the Atlantic cities.

To their friends and customers, and those who know them, it is needless to say anything, but to strangers who are in want of articles comprising their stock, they will say, call on us and let us show you the goods we have and we are able to offer you will give you polite and respectful attention, with better bargains than you are able to get elsewhere. The most perfect satisfaction is guaranteed in all cases to those who deal with us.

IMPROVED PATENT LEVER

RAILWAY PRESS.

THIS PRESS EXCELS ALL OTHERS NOW IN USE for pressing Hay, Cotton, Hemp, Wool, Hops, Rags, &c. &c., and will bale more in a given time, and of more size the work than any other press can with the same number of hands, with less than half the draught, a small boy can attend it, and a female can bale from the following with ease. The time required in running up the follower, is fifteen seconds. A bale of Hay can be pressed in less than one minute. Ordinary all large presses of eight bales can be pressed per hour. Bales of Hay can be pressed, weighing over 400 lbs., measuring two feet square and four feet long. Bales of Cotton can be made compact enough without cording.

The construction of this press is such that it does not require a building expressly for it, as it may be placed in any barn or shed, and moved from place to place, the same as at any distance from it; and when the bale is ready for delivery, it is discharged instantly, and the follower gradually recedes and is brought in the same.

The construction is so simple that any man can make a Press, or keep it in order.

The power of a horse, in running on a hide, is fifty feet, while in a screw press, the travel is one mile and a half, in running the screw up and down. We have one now Press now in operation at Waukesha, Wis., and two others in process of construction.

No great a failure at the hay crop as has occurred in all of the Eastern and Atlantic States, the present season, can not fail to create a demand for Presses in the hay districts in Wisconsin or Illinois, who may take hold of this business with energy. The hay may be shipped during the present fall and months of the spring navigation, before another hay crop is raised.

REPORT OF THE PREMIUM COMMITTEE OF THE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW-YORK.

"The Lever Railway, Hay and Cotton Press, is a machine combining great power, compactness of form and cost constructed on true philosophical principles, and is a great desideratum to the river counties, and all places not contiguous to canals and railroads, on account of its great strength and the Committee think they do not exaggerate when they say it is, in their opinion, the perfection of machinery for that purpose. The Committee therefore award a premium of $5."

The cost of the Press, with the right to use it, can be purchased for $60, and a Press of any size will be furnished for a given price. For rights for a single Press, or Towns, Counties and States, application should be made to the subscriber.

STOVES,

FOR COOKING, PARLOR & OFFICE USE; GRATE FRONTS, FIRE IRONS, KETTLES of all kinds; SAD-IRONS, STRAW-CUTTERS, CORN-SHELLERS, AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS, and PORTABLE

GRIST MILLS.

THE subscribers, thankful for past favors, beg leave to announce that they have secured the extensive business stand, and the whole operation of Mill Stone manufacturing, and are now prepared to supply the public with articles in either branch, on terms, quality and composition to defy competition. In offering our Stoves to the community, we do so with the full assurance that we can supply better articles than can be purchased at any other place, and we have a new pattern, manufactured expressly for this year, and from the very best materials. The following list of patterns is offered with the confidence that they will give satisfaction in every particular, viz:

THE ECONOMIST
DOUBLE OVEN COOKING STOVE,
(Which received the First Premium at the State Fair, lately held at Watertown.)

Possesses great advantages over every other stove, for plain duties and direct application of heat, being so arranged that one or both ovens can be used at pleasure. It will cook in half the time of any other stove now in use, and with half the fuel, not consuming over four cords of wood in one year.

The TRIUMPH, single oven, takes in long wood, is an excellent stove—one that has been well tested, and given general satisfaction.

The PREMIUM is different in its construction from any other, and in the arrangement of the fire box—a decided improvement.

The JUNO PARLOR is adapted to either wood or coal, being decidedly the most convenient ever offered to the public, having all the conveniences of the stove combined with the beauties of the open grate. It is beautifully finished, well adapted, and perfect in every respect—ornamental, highly finished, and perfect in every respect—the ornaments being so placed below the grate being opened or closed with three doors, and so arranged that when open they are completely out of sight. It is equally adapted to either wood or anthracite.

The RADIATOR is the best coal stove ever got up as a register of heat.

Persons purchasing their stoves or us, in the event of any of the plates getting broke, can at all times be supplied with extra ones, thus superseding the necessity of throwing away stoves, which in many are only caused to do so from using Eastern ware.

Those wishing to be in want of an article in our line, will find it to their advantage to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere; as we are confident that we can give satisfaction in all cases. City references given, where our stoves can be seen in operation. Stoves delivered and set up in any part of the city free of charge. All orders promptly attended to.

FOR purifying the air of Sleeping and sick rooms, cabins and hospitals, ships, steamers, &c. Also, for purifying rooms, in general, from animalic, close and irrespirable air of all kinds, including the infectious spheres of scarlet fever, small pox, yellow, bilious, typhus and other forms of our own or Southern and Western climates, in cities and towns, on land and water.
